PASSIVE INFORMATION GATHERING

- Collection of information about a specific target without the analyst's activities being minimally detected by the target.
- Difficult to carry out and often yields inconclusive results.
- The usual method of passive information gathering is through access to information stored in public places.
- It is rarely used individually.

WHY PERFORM PASSIVE INFORMATION GATHERING?

- The primary goal of this phase in the ethical hacking process is to gather the necessary information to prepare for the subsequent phases to be carried out.
